THE TOWNSITE CASE

It is with supreme regret that we this morning announce the people have lost the townsite case. That contest was, however, only a preliminary skirmish to the great battle which is now on.

Our people must not be downcast in this trying hour. They must not feel that all is lost. We must now take renewed courage from this defeat and begin at once for trial of our cause in the courts.

The case will be long; it will cost money; it will be opposed by brains and money just as has been the rehearing. But we can overcome all these if we only resolve to do so. Our property, our business, our homes are at stake and these we will not surrender until every resource known to jurisprudence has been exhausted.

THE GREAT AMERICAN GAME

Activity is increasing in base ball circles here and we are glad to note it. We have in our midst many good players and there is no reason why the people should not be afforded the opportunity of witnessing some lively exhibitions of the national game. To stimulate it would be well for the lovers of the sport to combine and purchase a suitable pennant or prize to be awarded to the nine winning the greatest number of games during the season. The doing of this would urge on the local contingent and, besides, might operate toward the formation of a league with the surrounding towns which have ball tossers.

A good game of base ball should be one of our chief attractions for the coming Fourth of July celebration. Why not invite the White Horse team to play a return game here with the soldier boys on Independence Day? While other sports have many admirers base ball has the call upon the people and still remains the great American sport. Let us have plenty of it during the summer.

We have heard a lot of talk about enforcing the ordinance which makes the use of tin flues in the business part an offense, but we do not see a great number of mortar boxes and fire piles of brick about, which would indicate that chimneys are being put in very fast. We incline strongly to the opinion that talk is about all there is to the agitation. One thing is certain that the city ought never to enter upon another winter with so many dangerous tin flues in its midst, and as this is the season of the year when brick can be laid we would be in favor of having the delinquents comply with the express provisions of the law without much more delay. The enforcing of the regulations, it is true, would entail some expense upon property owners, but the doing away with the stove pipes is imperative for the public weal.

Sir Thomas Lipton, speaking suppersocially, is deserving of better treatment on the part of his latest pet, on which he has expended so much money and effort, and his disappointment will be shared even by Americans who would not like to see the cup captured by him. They may at least venture the hope that the Shamrock '11 will yet show a better pace.

Public sentiment finally overcame the preachers' demand for Sunday closing of the Buffalo exposition, though the advocates of Sunday closing made life miserable for the managers for awhile. It is too cosmopolitan a country for comparatively a few people to dictate to others what they shall do on Sunday.

The joke of the Pan-American Exposition is on the capitalists who built the mammoth Slater hotel, with nine acres of sleeping rooms, three miles of halls and a dining room to feed 5000 persons. On Friday 280 employees were on duty at the hotel. There was one guest, Mr. Wilson, of New York, who humorously complained to the officers of inattention on the part of servants. Mr. Wilson went away on Saturday, and the management is looking for someone to take his place.

The picture which we gave of the new public school building now being erected on Twelfth avenue and Main streets yesterday morning is the first of its kind to be published in this city. It was entirely a local production. Artist Buel reduced the architect's plans to chalk plate and made the stereotype therefrom in the Alaskan office. While the facilities for doing it were not as complete as we hope to have soon, the cut worked splendidly as can be readily seen by a glance at the paper.

In a Georgia revival meeting—the story goes—a man became a little warmed up and said: "I'm the wickedest man in town. If I'd die tonight I'd go straight to hell." While the orator was getting rid of a "chaw" to make some further lurid remarks, an old brother started up the hymn: "If you get there before I do just tell them I am coming too." The preacher who was supposed to have his nerve with him bowed his head in silent prayer.

The defense set up by Mrs. Nation's lawyers, whether with her consent or not is not stated, is insanity and it is a far more reasonable plea in her case than in many a one in which it has been successfully invoked. That Mrs. Nation is to some extent crazy is certain, but if this excuse would serve for all people not well balanced in their heads, we would need a very large increase in our insane hospitals.

An Astoria minister, by operating with nickels to the total amount of $50, discovered that his winnings were a little less than half that amount—that the game was two to one against the human player and in favor of the machine. He must have played craftily or in unusual good luck, to have made so good a record for himself.

At last the Southeastern Alaskan coast is going to be equipped with additional lighthouses and other aids to navigation. This is a tardy recognition of a very imperative need, but then it is better to have it come late than never.

The Alaskan acknowledges the receipt of a copy of the government official report on the agricultural conditions of Alaska; also two volumes of "Message and Documents" from Senator Aldison G. Foster of Washington.

Mrs. Nation has been convicted by a jury and will have to pay a fine or serve a term in jail, which prosaic result of her joint smashing crusade extracts most of the romance from it.
